Beyond 1089 and All That

David Acheson

Advanced mathematical research and 'popular' maths for the general public would seem, at first sight, to be rather a long way apart.

But are they?

In this lecture, I will explore ways in which they can perhaps help one another, drawing on examples which range from number theory and elementary geometry to vortex motion and the Indian Rope Trick.